

One Million Rise in Prayer as Los Angeles Prepares for Citywide Spiritual Awakening

For 40 days, one million believers will come together across Los Angeles to pray, fast and share Jesus with their communities. It's all part of Hope Fest, an initiative designed to bring faith and tangible hope to each neighborhood across the city.

Throughout March and April, Hope California is calling on evangelists, missionaries, and volunteers to serve alongside local faith leaders to reach greater Los Angeles.

It will all culminate on April 11th at the iconic L.A. Memorial Coliseum, with worship, testimonies, baptisms, and a lineup of renowned speakers.

Pastor Che Ahn, the president of Hope California, draws inspiration for this "Hope L.A." event from the legendary Azusa Street Revival.
