

Was the Man in the Red Hat Prophecy Fulfilled?

Did a secular prophecy about a man in a red hat come to fruition?

Back in 1972, a Hopi Native American spiritual elder predicted that there would be a rise of a man in a red hat, alone with other future predictions about what would be coming for people in the years to follow.

“They will be very intelligent people. They’re going to produce many inventions,” the spiritual elder said. “They’re going to be so powerful that they’re going to use that to shake us up real hard, and they’re going to almost destroy themselves. But later, out of a new generation, is going to rise. This time, they will know what to do in the right manner for right purpose.”

The elder then pointed to the symbol of the sun, discussing further how the people to come would create powerful inventions and equipment, and that the destruction would appear to be right around the corner. However, through this time, a man with a red hat would arise.
