This event, however, didn't come without spiritual warfare prior to its start. Johnston and the team, including prophetic voice Katie Souza, encountered a woman who appeared to be under demonic influence, possibly involved in witchcraft. As she approached their circle, Johnston immediately sensed the need to address the situation. With boldness, they calmly approached her and asked her to back away. Within minutes, after they prayed and called on the name of Jesus, the woman's presence was no longer felt.

This powerful demonstration of spiritual authority highlighted the effectiveness of prayer, worship and the presence of the Holy Spirit in overcoming darkness.

"Join with us as we pray for the unsaved, to see miracles signs and wonders, deliverances [and] healings," says Souza.

To those wondering why someone would preach in the rain and deal with spiritual warfare, Johnston's answer was simple: "Because the same God that met me is about to meet you." With passion and conviction, he invited all who had never surrendered their lives to Jesus to do so publicly, reminding them of Jesus' words: "If you confess Me before men, I will confess you before My Father."

Hands shot up all across the crowd—young and old, locals and passersby. The sound of worship swelled once again as people made decisions for Christ, some for the very first time.

As the night ended, Johnston offered an invitation to get connected and help fuel the movement, encouraging financial support and prayer. “Awakening is here,” he declared. “And the time for revival is now.”
