

What Happened When Holy Spirit Stopped Rod Parsley in His Tracks

Televangelist Rod Parsley spoke with Charisma publisher Dr. Steve Greene recently to talk about the televangelist's new book, Grace, and how the Holy Spirit stopped him in his tracks while he was working on another project.

Parsley was preaching in Texas and resting at a hotel. As he walked through the adjoining door between his family's rooms, "the Holy Spirit as plainly as I've ever heard Him said to me, 'I want you to set that book aside, and I want you to write a book on grace.'"

The church often swings between two extremes when it comes to grace, and Parsley strives to walk a balance between them.

"There seems to be a great great polarization between government and glory, between law and grace and misunderstandings about what both of them are, so I decided to take some time and and just begin to write about it," Parsley says.

Listen to the podcast to hear the full interview.