

What if You Are Wrong About the Afterlife?

How often have we been convinced about something, and then later discovered we were in error? Mark Twain once said, "We are all ignorant, just about different things." Thomas Edison stated, "We do not know one-millionth of one percent of anything."

Why then are most people willing to talk about anything except for the Bible? If we don't talk about a subject and don't investigate it, we remain ignorant and uninformed.

Why would we be resistant to spending time researching what the Bible says about our eternal destiny? This is not a subject we can afford to be wrong about. I really don't know how people today are navigating life and thinking toward death without Jesus Christ. I can tell you that they are probably not doing it very well—even those who appear happy and successful. They still have a void and fear deep down inside them. They are all still afraid of dying.

I've met many people over the years who have had real near-death experiences. These people understood that their spirit and soul were very much alive—faced with either eternal bliss, or eternal torment. There are literally thousands of people, from all different walks of life, who have experienced heaven or hell through these near-death experiences. They are too numerous to simply discount as a figment of the imagination or a hallucination.

If you are living your life without God, thinking you'll just be annihilated or probably go to heaven because you are a pretty good person, you are sadly mistaken. You are on the road to hell. There is no greater mistake than remaining ignorant about what happens when we die. This is one topic we all must be absolutely 100% right about or face extremely dire, horrific consequences as a result. {eoa}
