

A ‘Davidic Anointing’ is Descending Upon Musical Instruments

I once heard a testimony where the Holy Ghost was falling upon the people during worship. The preacher, R.W. Schambach, testified how the piano player got so filled with the Spirit that she fell off of the piano bench and the piano kept right on playing.

No other explanation could be found except, “Jesus knows how to play a piano!”

I believe we are entering into a time and place of worship and praise where we will experience some unusual anointing’s upon musical instruments that will be played, at times, with heavenly fingers—either through His people, and sometimes without them. Heaven will invade even our so-called Spirit-led worship, and we will soon discover that the Father, Son and Holy Spirit just could wait no longer to join us with heaven shouting, “We’ve come to worship!”

Highly Volatile Worship

I saw a fresh anointing similar to the anointing that was upon David’s harp being poured out upon musical instruments. This anointing was highly volatile, able to easily drive demons and strongholds out of whole regions. I sense the Lord speaking to many worship leaders who have become weary in trying to lead others into His presence:

“Just worship Me, and I will take you and your instruments to a whole new level to cause My throne to descend and to drive out devils!”

Many Wind Instruments Will Experience My Breath Blowing Through Them

It was as though these angels with bowls full of the “oil of worship” were being instructed on which instruments to start pouring upon. This depended upon the players and their intimacy with the Lord. I sensed the Father distinctively describing which instruments would bring the most devastation in the next phase of spiritual warfare—all of them! He was reminding the enemy also of these fatal weapons:

“We do drumsticks, keyboards, stringed instruments, shofars and woodwinds. I also use hand-clapping, shouting, and feet that dance upon your land mines!”

These ‘Demon Buster’ Musical Instruments Will Not Only Be Found in My House, but in the Streets, Concert Halls and Gutters of the World

It was not really in David’s own territory that the anointing of his harp drove away evil, but in the house of Saul! In the place where the Spirit of the Lord had departed was where the anointing was the most powerful. For as long as David played on his harp, King Saul was free from tormenting spirits. (1 Sam. 16:23). That gives hope to any God-called musician in any church or place on earth! You may not have to leave where you are. You may just get to drive the devil out of that place!

I Saw Drumsticks Striking Drums, Releasing Arrows of Deliverance into the Atmosphere Above

Some drummers were weary and had even quit playing drums. But now the Lord was giving a new “war” order to these weary ones:

“Strike it again! You will no longer just play these drums, but they are now fatal weapons that you need to bring deliverance into your own life, family and region! Step on that bass drum one more time and you will soon find the enemy under your feet. This is a war order!”

Many worn out musicians were being called to pick up their harps off the weeping willow trees! Psalm 137:2 (NLT).

Many musicians were taken captive by the enemy to stop their worship and praise. The Lord was now calling many of these defeated ones to pick up their instruments again and play them in the midst of their defeats. They were discovering deliverance not only for themselves, but multitudes were being led out of their captivity.

Let the music begin.
