

Cindy Jacobs Prophecies: The Lord Says, 'I Am Going to Take Away Your Hopelessness'

This is what I see for you from the Lord. There are some of you who have become hopeless.

There are some of you who just feel like nothing is going to ever get better, and this is the word of the Lord for you: "I want to give a renaissance of hope to your life. I want to come in and take away those pillars that Satan has built up, the lies that he has told you through your pain, through your discomfort, through your sorrow." The Lord says, "I am going to rebuild you in the coming season, and I am going to take away this hopelessness."

God showed me that He is going to bring relationships that are going to be hope builders. He is going to bring people who will surround you when you feel abandoned, people to surround you when you are lonely.

The Bible says that God sets the solitary in families, and I see some of you, that even though you have people around you, they are not meeting your emotional needs, and it has been very hard for you. We can feel lonely even in a crowd, but the Lord says, "No!" There is a hope coming, and God has plans for you, to give you a future and a hope.

So stand up, and be willing to say that this hopelessness is not forever. "My situation is not forever, and I bind and take authority over the powers of darkness!" Hold your mind captive. I literally see some people who feel like they have hands just clamped down like a vice on their heads.

Some of you have headaches or migraines: I command them to go from you, in Jesus' name! I thank You, Father God, for healing

The Lord says, “And afterward,” because there’s got to be an afterward, “after your testimony, after your healing, then you’re going to cause others to have a renaissance of hope. You’re going to cause others to rise up in the midst of their pain and sorrow.” God is going to anoint you to be a hope bearer, says the Lord.
