

Facebook's Cryptocurrency Is a Major Sign of the End Times

Is Facebook launching a new cryptocurrency called "Libra" in a bid to create a global monetary system? A one-world, monetary system?

As put it, "Facebook may have too many users for its cryptocurrency to fail—even if you don't trust it. The platform's unprecedented user base is the only global population that's big enough to organize around a single currency."

They have 2 billion users!

And why would Facebook name its new cryptocurrency Libra? Is it a coincidence that Facebook is naming it after an astrological zodiac sign, a system that revolves around the occult?

Of all the Zodiacs there is only one marked by an inanimate object. And it is the Libra, which is marked by scales. Or judgment. The symbol for Libra also invokes the Greek letter Omega, which represents "the end."