

FIRST WATCH: Avril Lavigne Debuts Powerful Worship Video

Avril Lavigne returned to the music scene this week with a shocking song.

The woman behind “Sk8r Boi” of the early 2000s appears to have released a worship song. “Head Above Water” is reportedly her prayer while battling Lyme disease.

Some of the lyrics go:

So pull me up from down below/ ‘Cause I’m underneath the undertow

Come dry me off and hold me close/ I need you now I need you most

God, keep my head above water/Don’t let me drown, it gets harder

*I’ll meet you there at the altar/ As I fall down to my knees
Don’t let me drown, drown, drown/ (Don’t let me, don’t let me, don’t let me drown)*

Don’t let me drown, drown, drown/ And keep my head above water

(Don’t let me, don’t let me, don’t let me drown)

Above water

The video shows the former punk princess clothed in white and wearing a cross.

Watch the video and let us know what you think!