

Francis Chan: My Church Saved 100 People—and That's a Failure

One hundred people saved in one year is not a success if it took 4,000 people to do it. That's Francis Chan's point in this sermon, in which he addresses why megachurch statistics don't impress him and what a truly efficacious church should look like. As Chan says, "You would fire someone with an army that big that's producing that little a result."