

‘Get a Job or Lose Your Job’: Texas Hospital Employees Sue Over Vaccine Mandate

A group of 117 people who work at Houston Methodist Health System has filed a lawsuit against the medical center, objecting to its policy of requiring employees and contractors to receive one of the COVID-19 vaccination—all of which were approved under the FDA’s Emergency Use Authorization—or risk losing their jobs, per the Washington Post.

Learn more in this exciting update from Charisma News content development director Jeff Struss:

Read articles like this one and other Spirit-led content in our new platform, CHARISMA PLUS.