

Gov. Ron DeSantis Seeks to Make Florida a Riot-Free State

Florida Governor Ron DeSantis says the riots have to stop. He's signing into law what would declare Florida a "riot-free state."

His "anti-riot" law focuses on protecting Sunshine State citizens from riots such as those that ravaged the Midwest last summer.

"Peaceful protests are alright," Polk County Sheriff Grady Judd said in a Fox News interview. "But rioting, looting, burning ... that's not acceptable."

"This is about keeping the 20-plus million people who live in Florida safe, as well as the millions of people that visit with us every year," Judd continued.

Here's your Charisma News update with Jeff Struss, who shares more information about this recent story. {eo}