

Have You Become an Enemy of the Church?

In recent months there has been an alarming rise in the level of tension and anger among Christians.

Believers have placed their political and social opinions above peaceable relationships within the body of Christ. We are seeing people who call themselves Christians rejoice in the hardship of others, even wishing ill will on fellow believers.

How does one reconcile their identity in Christ while entertaining this kind of evil and darkness in their heart? No longer is it the church against the world, but instead it has become the church against the church.

Have you become an enemy of the church?
