

How This Spirit-Filled Organization Is Helping Rebuild Puerto Rico After Devastating Storms

Carlos Rodriguez from The Happy NPO recently gave an update on how the organization has been helping individuals and communities in Puerto Rico rebuild after being hit by devastating storms. Rodriguez highlights Lydia, a woman in Puerto Rico whose home was flooded and who injured her foot trying to escape. She now struggles to walk and requires a walker. But the Happy NPO built her a new roof and helped refurbish the house and even brought her furniture.

Rodriguez says it's living out the love Jesus commanded in Mark 12.

"We're going to keep doing the stuff that we love to do, which is to bring dignity to our neighbors here," Rodriguez says. "To love them in such a way that they're saved, that they're protected, that they're ready if there comes a next storm."

He says they plan to help other communities in the Bahamas and in Tijuana, Mexico in the weeks to come.
