

Kenneth Copeland Prophecies God's Mercy Will 'Show Up in Unexpected Places' in 2022

Evangelist Kenneth Copeland says that, just as in 2020 and 2021, many will continue to live in fear of COVID-19 and other cultural issues in 2022. But Copeland recently prophesied the Lord says that for those who continue to live in faith, it will be a "very, very good year."

"The grace of God and His goodness and His kindness and his mercy will be shown in places in 2022 that you never thought it would show up," Copeland says in the video of his prophecy. "The Lord says, 'My mercy shows up in places where people don't even think it's there in the first place.' I am a merciful God.

"There are those that became so stressed in 2019, 2020 and 2021 and so pressured by this biological weapon that was created in the earth," he continues. "This synthetic virus that was created to do what it has done, to upset the world. There were those who were under such pressure and they just said, 'I can't go any further,' so they stepped out of their bodies and they are in My presence, sayeth the Lord. There are those that will continue in 2022, but in 2022, there will be large swings from one way to the other ... there will be disasters for some, and great grace for others, and it will be like the swinging of a pendulum.

"There are those who will live in a state of fear for most of the year," Copeland says. "But those that know me, sayeth the Lord, will understand. They will know and they will understand in the spirit as the year goes by, and they will say, 'Whichever way it swings, I'm going to be all right.' There will be those who will rise up and say, 'I just don't believe it. I can't believe it,' and doubt will rise up and overtake you like a thief in the night, and you will suffer and know not what to do. You will be tormented the whole year through. But remember this, remember what you have heard. For when that comes, you can say, 'No, I am not doing that. I know these promises and I refuse the fear. I live and I walk in love. I walk by faith.' The love of God will come over you like a warm blanket; the very goodness of the anointing will rise up on the inside of you, and it will begin to push the fear out.

"We are a people who have known in whom we believe," he says. "This year will be very, very good and very, very strong for those who walk by faith and live that way. We have the mind of the great anointed one and His ability. By faith we will walk in that place and we know in whom we have believed."

For the rest of Kenneth Copeland's message, watch this video.

Read articles like this one and other Spirit-led content in our new platform, CHARISMA PLUS.