

Max Lucado: God Does Not Need Your Help or Advice

If you bring your car in to the mechanic for repairs, would you hover during the whole operation or try to offer suggestions? Of course not. So why do so many Christians try to micromanage God's reparative work in their lives? Best-selling author Max Lucado addresses that question—and offers some freeing words—in this clip.