

Max Lucado Shares Random Act of Kindness With an Incredible Moral

During a teaching at Gateway Church, Max Lucado said he was recently blessed at a Starbucks when the people ahead of him in line anonymously paid for his order. The experience taught him an important lesson about the gifts of God—and, importantly, why we should not refuse those free gifts. He shares the funny and surprisingly profound story in this video.