

Pentecostal Pastors Call This Leader's Rise to Power a 'Miracle of God'

Pentecostal pastors praise Scott Morrison's selection as Australia's prime minister as a "miracle of God."

"We are so excited to report what we believe are two direct answers to our prayer and fasting to the avalanche of evil that is upon us and the many challenges our nation faces at this time," Warwick Marsh, a faith and family advocate, tells The Guardian.

Other Spirit-filled pastors see the selection as a major fulfillment of prophecy for the country, but they have some skepticism about the future.
