

Prophecy by Cindy Jacobs: There's Going to Be Convergence

As I was praying about what to share with you, the Holy Spirit began to speak to me about one word, and that word is "convergence".

The Lord would say, "There's going to be a convergence of dreams, a convergence of promises, a convergence of prophetic words."

I see the Holy Spirit bringing together many threads, as the master weaver. The prayers you prayed when you were a young person, the things you dreamed of when you first held your baby in your arms, things you dreamed of are coming together.

This is really amazing, if you think about it, because there are all these prayers we pray and pray and pray, and some of them we think, "Well, I prayed it, but I guess it's not going to happen." But, God never forgets. His mighty hand can reach back and pull that promise forward.

Maybe you're contending for your healing, and you're praying and praying. God says there's going to be a convergence of healing power, and the Lord even showed me there's going to be a convergence of new medical breakthroughs.

It's going to come together. Like Oral Roberts said many years ago, "Medicine and healing, healing and medicine." So, the Lord says, "Don't give up on your dream convergence. Don't give up. Those things are going to come to pass for you." Because the Lord would say, "Remember, it's a suddenly time, and there will be a moment when everything's going to come together and dreams do come true."

God bless you. {eo}
