

Prophetic Dream: Regional Religious Strongholds Will Flee

I recently had a prophetic dream where I was in a very snowy place. The landscape was very cold and many things were frozen.

Then I saw several polar bears walk past me. They were walking in a line looking sad and defeated. Some were walking by themselves and others were walking next to each other in groups of two or three.

There were also white tigers walking past me. Just like the polar bears, they were walking in a line. Some were walking by themselves and others were walking beside each other. However, neither the polar bears nor the tigers ever looked at me.

As soon as I woke up from the dream, the Lord began to speak to me about the interpretation. One of the first things I was reminded of was from the Narnia books written by C.S. Lewis. In this story, when the White Witch was defeated, the snow melted, winter ended and spring came! I believe that there is a seasonal shift coming to many regions!

Polar bears and white tigers often represent religious spirits in dreams. Frozen landscapes with ice and snow can represent hindrances or opposition. I believe that this prophetic dream was prophetic insight from the Lord about regional religious strongholds being removed! Religious spirits that have been opposing the true people of God are about to retreat.

The polar bears and white tigers in this dream appeared to be defeated and were retreating. The time is up in regions for the religious spirit! The corrupt, agenda-seeking, opposing spirits will soon begin to flee from regions where God is moving. We are about to see a powerful outpouring of the Spirit come and blow fresh wind on the body of Christ.

I believe that as this season shifts, we will see those who are hungry for a move of God experience revival and awakening that will sweep across regions. Those who have opposed and criticized kingdom ministries and individuals will be silenced and the kingdom will advance in those regions! Many will move in the apostolic and the prophetic and life will return to the people of God. I believe many salvations, miracles, signs and wonders will break through in this next season. Religious structures in regions are going to be shaken and many who have natural dominion will dwindle and fade. As the shift takes place, revival will come to many ministries, churches and regions!

God is removing man-made programs and replacing them with His Holy Spirit and fire! We are about to experience a powerful move of God and everything will change. We will see the kingdom come and God's will be done in our regions as it is in heaven. Things will move and change and anything that is not from God will be uprooted. The prophetic words that have been spoken over regions, cities and individuals will begin to come to pass. The religious spirits and agendas that you have been fighting for years are being removed and new life and growth will come to your region. God is on the move, so get in position to partner with heaven to see regional strongholds removed! {eoa}
