

Sean Feucht Shares 'Wildest' Testimony of Salvation After Witch Hears God's Voice

Worship leader Sean Feucht says "nothing is impossible with God" after hearing the testimony of a Missouri woman who was delivered from witchcraft and her husband, who survived being crushed by a 2,500-pound tire.

The founder of "Let Us Worship" often shares the countless miracles he sees while leading evangelistic movements across the country. Recently, Feucht seized the opportunity to highlight the testimony of a husband and wife from Branson, Missouri.

James turned to the camera and shared the moment that changed the trajectory of the couple's life together.

"I was crushed by a 2,500-pound tire working down into the docks at Long Beach, California," he said. "I got squished like a bug, crushed my head, ripped my backside off my body."

James took off his hat to reveal to the camera that his head still has the scars from the accident.

Shauna jumped in, sharing, "Ten months later, he had a status epilepticus seizure, which means they didn't stop. As a result, They had to put him in a medically induced coma."

The Missouri woman says that in this life-or-death moment, the Lord was working her heart.

"I was taking a shower, getting ready to go back to the hospital, and God very clearly spoke to me and said, 'How many more miracles do I have to show you before you leave?'" she recounted.

She shared that while she was driving to the hospital, she encountered a strange weather phenomenon.

"It wasn't raining that day, but there was a rainbow in the sky," she said. "When I walked into [my husband's] ICU room, he was coming out of his coma."

"She was a witch, and God encountered her right after this crazy accident," Feucht added. "God saved his life. He's totally and completely walking, breathing, worshipping with us tonight. Is God not good?"
