

Sid Roth Has the Missing Ingredient to Your Breakthrough

The Sermon on the Mount might be the most famous sermon Jesus preached about character. But Sid Roth connects this teaching with a topic many wouldn't consider: revival breakthrough.

The beatitudes preached in the book of Matthew describe the blessed life of those who mourn, those who seek righteousness and so on. Yet, perhaps these beatitudes lead to strengthened character, which is what Sid Roth says in this video will lead to the "greatest harvest of souls in history."

He declares, "The character is going to attract the glory."

But he is quick to warn believers of attracting this glory on their own merit.

"It's not going to be by might; it's not going to be by power. It's going to be by the Spirit of God," he says.

And how do Spirit-filled followers of Christ receive that power? Through the personal act of communion, gathering together with the triune God to confess of their sins.
