

The Man Who Spent 23 Minutes in Hell Tells Sean Hannity of the Horror

Bill Wiese says it's not important that they believe he once spent 23 minutes in hell. What is important, he told Fox News' Sean Hannity, is that they believe the God's Word about the horrors of eternal death.

"The Lord simply wants me to point people to the Scriptures," says Wiese, the author of 23 Minutes in Hell and host of the podcast 23 Minutes in Hell on the Charisma Podcast Network. "Churches aren't talking about the Scriptures that talk about hell. I'm just a signpost to point people to those Scriptures."

Years ago, Weise says he had an out-of-body experience that literally dragged him to hell and back. Hannity says he believes Wiese had a "Dante's Inferno" experience.

Wiese's description of what it was like in hell is graphic and frightening.

"I saw this big pit of fire," Weise said. "There were hundreds, maybe thousands inside this pit burning and screaming. The screams were deafening. You are physically exhausted in hell. You are isolated. The stench is the most foul, putrid, disgusting odor. You are in total fear and complete darkness."
