

The Orphan Spirit Running Your Business

Watch what happens right before a breakthrough.

The deal is about to close, and you go quiet on the follow-up. The launch is working, and you suddenly want to tweak everything. Revenue climbs to a new level, and within a month it settles right back to where you've always lived.

You blame strategy. You buy another course.

The ceiling isn't in your strategy. It's in you.

Here's what money does that nobody warns you about. It doesn't create your wounds. It reveals them. Increase is a magnifying glass. Whatever was already there, more money makes louder.

For a lot of builders, what's in there is an orphan.

Jesus used that exact word. John 14:18. I will not leave you orphans; I will come to you.

An orphan believes that if he doesn't grab it and guard it and grind for it himself, no one is coming. That belief runs a business. It makes you take the scared money, hoard instead of invest, and flinch every time God tries to hand you more.

A son builds differently. He knows the Father owns the cattle on a thousand hills. So he makes the bold call, holds the bigger vision, and releases the deal that was beneath him.

Same skills. Same market. Completely different ceiling.

I've lived both. The seasons I built scared, I capped myself. The seasons I built like a son, the provision followed the obedience.

Your income keeps snapping back because part of you still believes it all depends on you. It doesn't. You were adopted out of that.

Build from the sonship. Not the wound.
