

This 94-Year-Old Washington, D.C., Tradition Celebrates America's Faith

For 94 years, presidents have participated in the National Christmas Tree lighting in Washington, D.C. But did you know this annual tradition was originally started by Calvin Coolidge as a symbol of America's faith? The Museum of the Bible gives the full background in this short video.