

This Is the Only Way to End Sex Trafficking

As a heartbreaking number of girls and women are coerced, kidnapped and manipulated into the sex industry, it's time for the righteous to stand up against this injustice.

The only way to end sex trafficking is to cut off the source: demand.

It's called the abolition model, and it addresses the problem head-on by criminalizing the act of buying sex and holding pimps, brothel owners and traffickers accountable—not the women being exploited.

Watch the video to see the model's incredible success.
