Joni Lamb Shares About Finding Peace After Loss

Marcus died in November of 2021, and our forty-year anniversary would have been the following August. We were married for over thirty-nine years and had dated for two years before that. I'd spent forty-one years with this person, and then, without warning, he was gone. It left an instant crater in my soul. Over the next several days family and friends came by, bringing food and offering emotional support, but that first night I was home alone, and that's what I wanted. I wanted to be alone.

Outside our home is a beautiful garden patio that faces the swimming pool. It was our backyard retreat. Marcus and I would sit out there in the mornings and sip our coffee. We would also play cornhole together out there in the afternoons.

After the deaths of my dad, my brother, and our friend John Paul Jackson, red birds became unusually significant to me. The Lord used them to confirm something very personal. There was one particular red bird that kept returning to our patio. Marcus and I would be out on the patio drinking coffee or playing cornhole, and my red bird would show up. We would kid about it, and I'd say, "Oh, there's my red bird. It's a sign from heaven." Each time I saw it, I would reflect on those I loved who had gone before us.

Embracing the Holy Wind: Partnering With the Holy Spirit in Everyday Life

In the Gospel of John, Jesus uses a profound metaphor to describe the Holy Spirit: "The wind bloweth where it listeth, and thou hearest the sound thereof, but canst not tell whence it cometh, and whither it goeth: so is every one that is born of the Spirit," (John 3:8, KJV). The Greek word for both wind and spirit is pneuma, literally making the Holy Spirit the "Holy Wind." This metaphor is rich with meaning and offers us a way to understand and partner with the Holy Spirit in our daily lives.

First, consider the pervasive nature of the wind. It exists everywhere on the earth, just as the Holy Spirit is omnipresent. Psalm 139:7-8 (MEV) reminds us, "Where shall I go from Your spirit, or where shall I flee from Your presence? If I ascend to heaven, You are there; if I make my bed in Sheol, You are there.” Recognizing the Holy Spirit’s constant presence can bring comfort and assurance in every moment of our lives.

Perry Stone’s Prophetic Dream: A Tsunami is Coming

Is there a prophetic tsunami heading for the United States?

In a new video warning God’s people of what could be heading our way, Perry Stone detailed a dream he had about what’s coming for America and how the story of Noah relates to our current situation today.

“Jesus made a statement in Matthew that as it was in the days of Lot and Noah, so will it be at the time of the coming of the Son of Man,” Stone says.
