

Trump Administration Honors President's 'Most Important Accomplishment'

During a ceremony honoring the president, the Trump administration highlighted what it says is Donald Trump's greatest achievement during his time in office: his strong support of life regardless of situation or circumstance.

"When I got this job as press secretary, I knew it would be a tough one because I was a new mom and wanting to not miss a single moment of her life," McEnany remembers. When she accepted the job, McEnany says Trump told her, "Your daughter is going to be OK." McEnany continues, "He is a president that supports moms; he's a president that supports life."

McEnany says this is evident, not only through his support for her and her then-newborn but through the "freedom-loving justices and judges across this country" whom Trump has appointed to "protect our liberties" that are "central to ... our founding documents."

For more on how Trump has upheld the theme of the night—Life Is Winning—watch the video now. And watch the full ceremony here.