

Two Sons Are Told: 'Take the COVID Vaccine or Your Mom Dies Alone'

You've made the grueling 800-mile drive with only one mission in mind: Accompany your brother to anoint your mother before she takes her final breath.

But your access has been denied.

Despite offering to use every possible protection—including wearing the most extreme biohazard gear and taking a COVID test—because you refuse, based on moral and religious objections, to receive a vaccination, you're told you cannot see your dying mother.

And because you cannot see your dying mother, you also cannot deliver last rites and anoint her in her final days.

This is the story for two deacons who tried to visit their elderly Romanian mother in a Michigan hospital.

Liberty Counsel has since taken up their case, and Charisma News content director Jeff Struss has the details here. {eoa}
