

WATCH: God Overwhelms Songwriter With 'Supernatural Peace'

Singer/songwriter Jonathan Traylor performed his new song "Undeniable" live and also gave a touching explanation of why he wrote the song. He wanted to know God is real, and when Traylor sought Him alone in his room, God revealed Himself to him in an unforgettable way.

"It was cool to be able to go to my room, get on my face before the Lord, saying, 'I need to hear You. I need to know that You're near. This is going on, God; I know You see it, but I just need to know You're here with me,'" Traylor says. "And to feel the gravity of His presence and feel His love, and know that this is more than just an emotional thing. ...

"I feel a supernatural peace and love that I've never felt before. ... If I can just go tell the world, and if they can just feel what I felt in my room on my face before the Lord, there's no way they can be the same."
