

WATCH: Mike Pence Shares a Stirring Georgia Rally Cry

During Georgia election rallies yesterday, Vice President Mike Pence urged those in attendance to get out and vote. The runoff for two Senate seats has high stakes for the next two year on abortion and all matters. The two Republican candidates, Sens. Kelly Loeffler and David Perdue, are facing off against Democrat candidates Raphael Warnock and Jon Ossoff.

Retaining conservative control of the two seats is crucial for Republicans and would give them a Senate majority to override legislation expected to include using tax dollars to fund abortions up to birth. A Republican victory would prevent pro-abortion Democrats like Warnock and Ossoff from controlling both sides of Congress.

Be sure to catch Pence's address here.