

WATCH: Recap of Revival Wave Sweeping Nation, Proclaiming Freedom

Sean Feucht's name has become synonymous with the "Let Us Worship" events, which began as a response to California Gov. Gavin Newsom's ban on in-person worshipping in church and have exploded across the country in both revival and restriction.

Friday, Feucht and his team released a recap video showcasing their 2021 events and highlighting the crisis of religious freedom our country now faces.

"The Jesus People Movement is coming to America again," Feucht proclaims in a 2020 event on the Golden Gate Bridge in San Francisco, California. "Highlights of baptisms, news reports, celebration and opposition combine to showcase an event that has become a movement that shows no signs of stopping."

"God, I'll travel halfway across America ... I'll wake up at 6 in the morning," he says later in the video. "If that means I get to experience Your presence, I'll go to the lengths. I will drive; I will fly; I'll take a train; I'll take a bike. It doesn't matter; You are worth it all!"
