

WATCH: #WorshipTakeOver in the White House

Sean Feucht, a Spirit-filled worship leader associated with Bethel Music, posted a video Friday of boisterous praise taking place inside the White House. The details of the meeting are unclear at the time of publication, though the meeting appears similar to last November's gathering of Christian artists at the White House.

Feucht captioned the video, "In case anyone out there is worried about the future of America today... we're inside the White House right now." He hashtagged the video "WorshipTakeOver" and "DontLoseHope." The video shows people with hands raised in worship and several seem to be singing in tongues.

On Instagram, Pastor Jentezen Franklin commented on the post, "Amazing!"

Feucht is currently campaigning for the U.S. House of Representatives in California's third district.