

What Worship Really Means in an Exhausted World

Mike Signorelli, pastor of V1 Church in New York City, says that worship is a childlike expression of dependence and reliance on God in the midst of chaotic situations.

In a Facebook video, Signorelli says, “Restlessness comes from trying to control a world that’s constantly changing. And if you’re saying, ‘Pastor Mike, I’ve tried. I’ve tried. I just don’t know what else to do.’ That’s what worship in and of itself is. It’s an expression. It’s a childlike expression where you say, ‘God, I want you to be my Dad. I want you to be in charge.’ It’s surrender. The kingdom is surrender. It’s not how intelligent you are. It’s not how much you can see and you can figure out. Just one idea from God will accelerate you past all of your plans put together.”

Watch the full video—embedded here—to see more.