

Why It's Better to See a Christian Counselor Over a Secular One

Todd Friel, host of Wretched Radio, says when secular psychologists don't mention Jesus to their patients, they miss an opportunity to give people hope. Additionally, when the world doesn't have answers for trials that come, Christian psychologists can best explain what it looks like to find meaning and purpose in suffering.

"When a secular psychologist never mentions the source of genuine hope, how is somebody going to get hope?" Friel says. "They never mention that suffering is meaningful within God's purposes of mercy and judgment. Isn't that a tragedy?"

To watch the entire video, click here.