

Why Your Home Might Be the Hardest Mission Field

Author and speaker Priscilla Shirer says that during this period of quarantine, we may encounter the most difficult mission field of all: our own homes.

“Sometimes the hardest mission field is our house,” Shirer says. “It’s actually just being committed to the purposes of God, to the people that we actually live with. ... He has not called you necessarily to the masses. What he’s called me to be diligent to is this husband that I’ve been given to be married to, these three sons that He’s entrusted to me to rear.”

To watch the entire video for more discussion on navigating the COVID-19 outbreak in a godly manner, click here.