

Worship Leader Shines a Light on the Secret Epidemic Churches Don't Talk About

Pornography is well-known as a destructive temptation for many men. But statistics show that one in four women also seek out pornography—and many churches have done little to help them, treating it as a male issue. Christian singer Audrey Assad shares her own testimony and suggests how churches can become better at counseling young women on this topic.