

Before Warning the Church About UFO Disclosure, God Had to Wake Up This Green Beret

Former Green Beret Paul Bock believes his Special Forces experience prepared him to recognize the strategy unfolding behind the government's UFO and UAP disclosure agenda. Before he could warn the church, however, God first confronted him about his own divided life.

Bock joined the Army in 2005 and later served in Iraq, Afghanistan and Syria. Although he considered himself a Christian, his conduct did not consistently reflect his faith.

"If you were to put me up on trial for being a Christian, you couldn't have convicted me," Bock told Charisma Media.

His spiritual awakening began during a painful season marked by combat exhaustion and personal loss. Bock lost friends in war, including an explosives specialist killed shortly before his unit left Afghanistan. He and his wife also lost two unborn children.

While stranded overseas, Bock listened to Chuck Missler's "Learn the Bible in 24 Hours." Missler's examination of biblical prophecy and the reliability of Scripture stunned him.

"It blew my mind, the things that he was presenting as far as validation of the text, as far as the prophecies of the Messiah," Bock said.

After returning home, Bock listened to Missler teach about God the Father watching His Son suffer on the cross. Having experienced the loss of his own children, Bock found the message deeply personal.

Burned out and preparing to leave the military, he prayed about entering ministry. God's answer redirected his life.

"The military's your ministry," Bock recalled sensing from the Lord. "You've been living for yourself."

Bock began remembering fellow soldiers he loved but had never told about Jesus. He decided to treat the military as his mission field.

That surrender now shapes his warning about UFO disclosure. For Bock, preparing for what is coming begins with biblical discernment, repentance and an unwavering pursuit of Jesus.

"Everything has to be the pursuit of Christ," he said. "'Cause there's nothing greater that matters."
