In Scripture, Jesus refers to Himself as the Good Shepherd. In a culture where shepherding was so prevalent, the Jewish people knew that wolves getting into the flock would mean detriment and death to the sheep. Likewise, Satan tries to come in as a spiritual wolf to steal, kill and destroy God's people.

"It's a symbol of evil," Cahn says. "The people of God are a spiritual flock of sheep in a sense. So, there is a spiritual wolf who would come in."

He points out that spiritual wolves in our world today are divisive, malicious people who try to destroy the kingdom of God. Their goal is to harass the herd, to cause strife and lead people down the wrong path.

"They seek to cause chaos, panic, confusion," Cahn says. "They especially seek to mark out the weak. They go after the weak of the flock; the lame, the crippled, old, sick and the very young. They seek to isolate that one, separate that sheep from the flock."

It is these tactics of confusion, panic, fear, anxiety, manipulation and control that witchcraft uses to attack the people of God to take us far away from our Savior.
